The SSC Team

- o What is academic dishonesty?

The two most common kinds of academic dishonesty are cheating and plagiarism.

Cheating is the act of obtaining or attempting to obtain credit for academic work through the use of dishonest, deceptive or fraudulent means, such as

- Copying, in part or in whole, from someone else's test
- Submitting work presented previously in another course, if contrary to the rules of either course
- Altering or interfering with grading
- Using or consulting any unapproved sources or materials during an examination, including consulting with other students, or using electronic equipment such as cell phones, unless authorized by the instructor
- Committing other acts that defraud or misrepresent

Plagiarism is representing the work of someone else as your own. This may include

- Incorporating the ideas, words, sentences, paragraphs, or parts of another person's writings without giving appropriate credit, and representing the product as one's own
- Representing another's artistic or scholarly works such as musical compositions, computer programs, photographs, paintings, drawings, choreography, or sculptures as your own
- Submitting a paper purchased from a research or term paper service, including the internet
- Undocumented use of internet sources

Other examples of academic dishonesty include

- Purposely allowing another student to copy from your paper during a test
- Giving homework, term paper or other academic work to another student to plagiarize
- Having another person submit any work in your name
- Lying to an instructor or college official to improve your grade
- Altering graded work after it has been returned, then submitting the work for re-grading
- Stealing tests
- Forging signatures on drop/add cards or other college documents
- Collaboration without permission of instructor
- Gaining unlawful or unauthorized access to college or district computers or servers

Consequences of Academic Dishonesty

Academic and/or administrative sanctions may be applied in cases of academic dishonesty.

- Academic consequences may include
- Receiving a failing grade on the test, paper or exam
- Having course grade lowered
- Receiving a grade of F in the course

Administrative consequences may include

- Disciplinary probation
- Disciplinary suspension
- Expulsion

Students may also be subject to arrest or monetary fines if the academic dishonesty offense violates state or federal law.

Student Records

The Student Development & EOPS Office maintains a record of students who have engaged in academic dishonesty. This information is used to identify and discipline students reported for academic dishonesty more than once.

Related policies and procedures are printed in the college catalog. Copies are available from the Student Development office located downstairs in the Hinson Campus Center.
